GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY
OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH
GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Foreword

The Third Frisbie Supplement deals with those descendants of Edward Frisbie of Branford, Connecticut, who are of the female line. The compilation includes additions and corrections to the entries in this category which appear in the Frisbee-Frisbie-Frisby Family Genealogy published by Olin E. Frisbee in 1964, and all new material which has been accumulated since that time. Some of the entries were published in the First Supplement of 1967, but all of these are included in the present Supplement.

Generally speaking, the entries represent a rather mixed bag. In many family genealogies the information on a female descendant ends with her name and marriage date and perhaps a listing of her children. In the Frisbee-Frisbie Genealogy of 1926 by Edward S. Frisbee, however, the compiler included all known descendants in the female line, carrying some of them down three or four generations. His non-Frisbie entries were numbered in sequence along with the Frisbie names.

Olin E. Frisbee followed the same policy in his Genealogy of 1964, but devised a new system of numbering the non-Frisbie people. He used a three-part number which is explained later. In some cases, however, particularly in the earlier generations, he reported the mother's name and listed the children, but without identifying numbers. In other instances he assigned numbers, but he followed no particular pattern in this respect.

Since the publication of the two genealogies, much new information has come to hand regarding the non-Frisbie people. Many of the earlier individuals were found to have served in the Revolutionary War, and family numbers have been assigned for purposes of identification. Many intermarriages between cousins have been found, and these persons have been identified. Often an individual is mentioned in the Quarterly Bulletin of the Frisbie-Frisbee Family Association, and they also require an identifying number. These persons have been entered in the Third Supplement.

In some cases Olin entered a name in his compilation with the notation "no information", although the individual appears in the 1926 Genealogy. See for instance Samantha Beardsley who is listed as #1-409 in the 1964 book with the comment "no information", although there is an entry for her in the 1926 book under #2706. Where no new information is known about the individual, I have referred the researcher to the 1926 Genealogy. If new information has come to hand I have entered it in the Supplement.

It must be emphasized that for persons whose names appear in the 1964 Genealogy, the present compilation reports only corrections or new information. As an example, the entry for Doris Lee Fiedler Gilbert #1-264 notes the addition of two children. For the complete entry on this individual the researcher is referred to the 1964 Genealogy.

With certain exceptions all new entries in the Supplement include all the information on the individual which presently appears in our master genealogical files. The exceptions refer to the children of persons two generations or more removed from the Frisbie name. Where nothing more is known of these children than their names the entry merely notes the number of children, as "one child" or "two children".

In a few instances new names have been inserted into the body of the entries in the 1964 Genealogy; these are indicated by a plus sign (+).

The numbering system varies slightly from that used by Olin in the 1964 Genealogy. He used a three-part number and omitted the reference number that is employed generally in the body of the Genealogy. As an example, the family number of Harriet Julia Frisbie Ward is #1944; her reference number is (7)I-884. This reference number indicates that she is the seventh generation from Edward of Branford, the first child in her family, and the daughter of #884. Her son Elwyn Frisbie Ward appears in the Genealogy with the family number 1-1944-120, but with no reference number. The 1 of the family number indicates that he is one generation removed from the Frisbie name, the 1944 is the family number of his Frisbie ancestor, and the 120 is his own personal number. I have listed him as #1-120, with the addition of the reference number (9)I-1944.

The same system is used for numbering subsequent generations, a number such as 2-667 indicating that the individual is two generations removed from the Frisbie name, and so on.

The abbreviations used are those employed generally in a genealogical work; a list of them will be found on page v.

Supplement #3 augments Supplement #2, which was published in April 1973.

At the time the Second Supplement was planned it was intended to issue it in three parts: Part I to include the additions and corrections to the descendants of Edward Frisbie of Branford in the male line; Part II to include the "Non-Frisbies", that is, the descendants of Edward of Branford in the female line; Part III to include the unclassified families and Later Comers, that is, those Frisbies whose relationship to Edward is not known.

However, due to the enormous mass of material which was included in the Non-Frisbie supplement, it has been thought advisable to issue it as a third and separate supplement.

The information included in this Supplement was drawn chiefly from data furnished by other family members, or from material researched by them and generously shared with me. The compilation could not have been assembled without their help.

Additions and corrections to the Supplement will be gratefully received, and correspondence about any aspect of Frisbie Family history is invited.

An Explanation of Double Dates

In some instances in the earlier generations a date will appear such as 2-10-1742/1743.

This comes about due to the reformation of the calendar in the sixteenth century. Up to the late 1500's the Old Style calendar was in use, in which the year began on March 25.

Towards the end of the century most European countries adopted a new and revised calendar in which the year commenced on January 1.

England, however, continued to use the Old Style calendar until 1752. Hence, dates between January 1 and March 25, up to that time, fall into one year according to Old Style, and into the following year by New Style. For accuracy, both dates must be shown.

As an example, assume that a child born on Dec. 10, 1720, died the following Jan. 10. By Old Style calculation the date of death would be Jan. 10, 1720; by New Style it would be Jan. 10, 1721. The date of death would be shown as Jan. 10, 1720/21.
